

Three Life Changes That Will Impact Eternity

One technology company, determined to give Apple® a run for its money, took out a full-page ad announcing the release of their spectacular new computer. The bold headline promised, “The personal computer with expandable memory, advanced peripherals and comprehensive software, so it will never become obsolete.” The year was 1979, and the computer was the Atari 800.

Nearly forty years later, we’ve seen many products and services go the way of the Atari 800, including VCRs, rotary telephones, and even encyclopedias. But what you may not have considered is that your estate plan could be obsolete as well. There are many life changes which indicate that an update to your estate plan may be in order, including:

- Family changes. Perhaps your family has recently grown or a loved one has passed away. And what about your children—are they financially stable with potentially no need for an inheritance?
- Financial changes. Has retirement or the selling of a business caused your financial situation to shift? If so, have you considered the tax implications, or any investment opportunities that may lessen their impact?

• Priorities changes. As seasons of life change, sometimes we experience a shift in what is nearest to our heart. Does your current estate plan reflect what’s most important to you?

Ensuring that your estate plan is up to date and a true reflection of your personal values is a form of exercising biblical stewardship—a practice that will never go out of style. Having an up-to-date will means you acknowledge that everything you own has been given to you by God and you want to take care of it wisely, even after your death. Did you know you can designate a gift in your will to a ministry you care about, like Life Action? This action will not only set a powerful example for your family, it will also give you an opportunity to invest in eternal, incorruptible kingdom purposes.

Don’t let your estate plan or your hard-earned dollars become obsolete. Practice good stewardship, and impact lives for eternity.

“Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust destroys and where thieves do not break in and steal” (Matthew 6:20).

Please consider including Life Action in your will.

- I would like information on leaving a significant eternal impact through donating retirement assets.
- I have already included Life Action Ministries in my will, trust, or estate plan.
